THE ADVANTAGES TO BUYING OUT YOUR CAR LEASE

Leasing a vehicle often affords the driver a low monthly payment on a vehicle they might otherwise not be able to afford, but what if we told you buying out your lease could mean owning your car at below its market value?

When you lease, you're paying for the car's depreciation over the lease term, which can be expensive. Conversely, when you purchase it for yourself, you're paying for the cost of the vehicle, which is typically lower than the lease payments. Plus, with the current high cost of used vehicles, getting an auto loan means a smaller total loan amount and monthly payments than you would get when purchasing the same vehicle at retail price.

Owning your car also means you're building equity. Are you leasing because you don't want to be stuck in the same vehicle for years? You can have the best of both worlds by using the equity you build by making loan payments as a down payment on a new purchase in the future. Plus, by ditching your lease, you'll save in the long run by eliminating any associated fees.

In addition to offering preapproved rates for bargaining power at the dealership, FPCCFCU offers a wealth of resources to guide members through the car-buying process.
